HAS BEEN VISITING UNFREQUENTED PLACES IN EUROPE, AND MET MME. DREYFUS.

The American Line steamship New-York, from Southampton, reached her pier here yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock. She arrived at the Bar shortly before midnight Saturday, but was obliged to come to anchor, owing to the fog. The voyage was described as an especially pleasant one by assengers. Among its incidents was the birth in midocean of a son to Mrs. Thomas L. Talbot, a second cabin passenger. The christening took place on Saturday, and was attended by many of the first cabin passengers. The boy was named Roberts York Talbot, in honor of the captain of the ship, and the passengers presented to the mother a purse containing $35.

The New-York brought a number of well known persons, among them being Recorder John W. Goff, who was among the first to come down the gang-plank. The Recorder was as brown as a berry, and looked in excellent health.

"I searched out the sunny spots during my travels," he explained, laughingly. The Recorder left New-York on June 20, and his whereabouts were not generally known until he had nearly reached the other side. "I hear there was a report that I had been shanghaled," he said, with a twinkle in his eye. "I started out on this trip," he continued, "with the intention of visiting some of the unfrequented spots in Europe. Among those I saw were the scenes of Hugo's exile in the Channel islands, and I also visited many interesting out of the way places in Brittany, and spent some time at Cape nistère. I did not see an American newspaper during the entire period of my absence, and did not read anything about the doings of the Mazet Committee. I did read in the foreign papers, however, of the death of Robert G. Ingersoll, and of the appointment of Elihu Root. I think Mr. Root will prove a competent and able Secretary, and will fill the office with honor to himself and credit to the National Government."

'During a three days' stay in Rennes," the Recorder said in continuing an account of his travels, I met Mme. Dreyfus, and was permitted to view from a distance the place where Dreyfus is con-At one of the cell windows I saw a man reading a newspaper. I was told it was Dreyfus. With Mme. Dreyfus I had a brief conversation. She is a remarkable woman. As to the guilt or innocence of Dreyfus, I have no comment to offer. I hardly regard it as fitting for a representative of the judiciary of one country to comment upon the actions of the judiciary of another."

The Recorder said that he would sit to-day in Part I of the Court of General Sessions.

MUNZINGER SAYS THE DECISION AGAINST THEM WAS EXPECTED-TO APPEAL THE CASE -M'QUILLAN'S DEATH.

John C. Sheehan was at Long Branch yesterday, but his followers in the IXth Assembly District say they are not at all dismayed by the decision given in court against them. "We expected the decision would be against us," said Senator Louis Munand were prepared for it. We will not lose a vote in the primaries as a result of it. The case will be appealed to-morrow. Senator Munzinger told last night of the death of Daniel McQuillan, who lived in the district. He says McQuillan died from a broken heart. McQuillan, who was seventy years old, lived at No, 466 West Twenty-sixth-st. He owned a horse and cart, which he hired out to the Street Cleaning Department. When the split came between the Sheehan and Goodwin factions in the district he stuck to Sheehan. Almost at once he was discharged by the Street Cleaning Department. His name was mentioned in the resolutions adopted by the Pequod Club, and a few days later he was told he could have his place back, but before he had secured it he had worried so much that his health broke down and he died. The funeral was yesterday, and a great many of the Sheehan men attended it. McQuillan had a good sized family, and the cart was his main means of support.

The first of these races it is proposed to sail on Tuesday next.

PLANS FOR THE FALL CAMPAIGN. DEWEY AND THE PHILIPPINES.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE CITY COM-MITTEE TO MEET TO-DAY-UNION OF ANTI-TAMMANY FORCES HOPED FOR.

It was a hot, muggy day at Manhattan Beach yesterday, and the little coterie of Republican politicians at the Oriental Hotel plainly showed the effect of the heat. Senator Platt, Chairman Odell, Lemuel E. Quigg and George H. Roberts, of Brooklyn, chairman of the Executive Committee of the City Committee, talked over the situation in a desultory way. Mr. Roberts said that a meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Committee would be held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel to-day to make arrangements for the election of a new City Committee and to prepare for holding conventions for nominating Aldermen. He intimated that resolutions would be offered indorsing the plan for union of all anti-Tammany forces in the city this fall. Where an agreement is reached upon a candidate for either the Assembly or the Board of Aldermen, the organization is willing to allow the Independents to nominate first. There is talk about running ex-Justice Dalv as a Union candidate for the Supreme Court, but the Republican managers have reserved their opinion about this as yet. Both Mr. Quigg and Mr. Roberts said yesterday that they had been greatly encouraged by the support their harmony plan had received and believed that it would result in the Republicans having a majority both in the Assembly and in the Board of Aldermen next year.

CROKER NOT TO BE FOUND.

VARIOUS REPORTS REGARDING HIS WHERE-

ABOUTS-NONE OF THEM CONFIRMED. Richard Croker has mysteriously disappeared and a great many politicians were speculating yesterday as to where he was. There were many stories as to his whereabouts. One said that he was in Saratoga, but word that reached here last night from there denied that Mr. Croker was there, Another story was to the effect that he was cruising on the yacht of Lewis Nixon, but this was not confirmed. Yet another said that he had gone not confirmed. Yet another said that he had gone to Jamesport, Long Island, to visit Hugh Mc-Laughlin, but this also lacked substantiation. It was asserted also that he was at Long Branch. At the Democratic Club it was said that Mr. Croker was not there and had not been there, and they had no idea where he was. A story was printed yesterday to the effect that Mayor Van Wyck had suddenly left Saratoga and come to New-York. If that is true he kept under cover all day, as he was not at the Democratic Club, at his house, or at any of his usual haunts, so far as could be ascertained.

Among the passengers on the American liner New-York, from Southampton, yesterday, were Walter Camp, of the Yale Graduate Committee, who went to England with the Yale-Harvard team in July, when they contested with the team from Oxford and Cambridge. With him were E. J. Wendell and some of the athletes. It was rumored that one cause of Mr. Camp's visit to the other side was to secure "Bob" Cook, Yale's veteran coach, to take charge of the Yale crew again. This Mr. Camp denies.

Camp met Cook while abroad, and had a chat with him. Yesterday, when seen on the pier, Mr. Camp denied that he made any effort to secure Cook for Yale as a coach. He said:

"When I was in France I saw "Bob" Cook and had a talk with him. He is looking well. I did not see him on business of any kind, and made no overtures to him to return as coach. Nothing was said about the matter."

Speaking of the defeat of the Yale-Harvard team Mr. Camp said that, probably, if the trials were to take place again, the Americans would win the quarter-mile race. When asked about the criticism that has been made that Yale and Harvard placed the other colleges in a false light by posing as a champlon team, when other colleges could have defeated them, he said: "They did not pose in that light. They were challenged by Oxford and Cambridge, and there was nothing left but to accept or reject the challenge."

London, Aug. 21.-The Naples correspondent of "The Daily News" telegraphs the substance of an interview he had with Admiral Dewey there during the Admiral's recent visit. Admiral Dewey said he believed the Philippine question would shortly be solved. In his judgment the inhabitants were capable of self-government, and the only way to settle the insurrection and to insure prosperity was to concede it to them. He declared that he was never in favor of violence toward the Filipinos,

Only once did Mr. Moss refer to the investigation now being made by the Mazet Committee.

"There is a general belief all over the land." he said, "that honest government in large cities is impossible. #### A SERMON AGAINST ATHEISM.

THE REV. FRANK ROGERS MORSE TAKES INGER-SOLL FOR HIS THEME.

Rev. Frank Rogers Morse, assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, in West Fifty-sev-enth-st., in his discourse last night, took for his theme "Wherefore didst thou doubt?" (Romans xiv, 32). He said in part:

32). He said in part:

The moment Peter, as described in the narrative, doubted, he began to sink in the water. The moment a man begins to doubt God, that moment he weakens morally or modifies his judgment of evil. I am suspicious of an excess of charitableness, for it may mean too great leniency toward wrongdoing. When a famous atheist recently died many a pulpit eulogized his personal gifts and deeds, and poet and orator made him fit for some beatific realm. In life he biasphemed God, prenounced the Bible a bundle of fables, made sport of the Church and commended the crime of suicide. This was the working of a scepticism which was prompted by the devil.

cide. This was the working of a scepticism which was prompted by the devil.

We live in a doubting age, and men speak of vices as if they were virtues. They supply to wick-edness the mask of such phraseology as hides its naked deformity. A doubter thinks that Tammany Hall is as good as any church, and its gallant chieftain as virtuous as the Apostle Paul. Doubt is the child of the devil. Atheism is his offspring. When Satan makes us doubt then he tampers with our estimate of moral evil and seeks to paralyze the conscience, which is the faculty whereby we know right from wrong.

HIGH TEMPERATURE AND HIGH HUMIDITY-THE RESORTS CROWDED.

So degrees, to which the mercury had climbed from 72 degrees at 6 o'clock in the morning. It remained at 85 degrees until after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and then began slowly to creep downward, so slowly that even at 11 o'clock at night the mercury was at the 77 degree notch.

Folks were up early yesterday—in fact, thousands had been unable to sleep the night before—and soon after breakfast New-York began to take itself off to the beaches. Men, women and children jammed the excursion boats until the day was far spent, and at times during the morning and in the afternoon the trolley roads to various resorts could not perceptibly thin the crowds at the Bridge.

The steam roads also had difficulty in handling the throngs who sought relief from the city's furnacelike air.

Even at the beaches it was hot, and the shade of verandas and booths was at a preminum. It was especially hot at the Long Island beaches, and from Rockaway comes the report of several persons being prostrated, though there was no serious case.

The identity of the woman in the case is not yet clear, but it is believed to be a near relative of Mrs. Reep. There is doubt as to whether the husband fired the shot or acquiesced while the woman committed the crime. Reep has been sent to Jail.

The Building Trades Section has prepared a circular letter which will be sent out to all builders and contractors in the city calling attention to the fact that it is formed for the purpose of uniting under one central head all the various building trades of the borough. It is also opposed to exorbitant initiation fees, strikes and dissensions between trades unions; it condemns unions, which, while denouncing "capital trusts" because they raise prices and reduce wages, create a greater evil in the form of a "labor trust" and by that means endeavor to prevent artisans not identified with them from obtaining even a day's work. Though composed of bona fide union men, this body is in favor of recognizing as a union man any one who carries a union card and abides by union rules."

The letter goes on to say that the Building Trades Section is the only representative body of the building trades in Brooklyn, inasmuch as it is not controlled by walking delegates, but is composed of four representatives from each union affiliated, and is a part of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union.

DEATH ENDS DIVORCE SUIT.

THE PLAINTIFF IN THE VALENTINE CASE DIES AT HER SUM-MER HOME.

AFFAIRS OF HER ESTATE NOT YET STRAIGHTENED OUT-A WELL KNOWN MEMBER OF PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Death, which came to Mrs. Marie Antoinette torrs Valentine, a well known resident at No. 21 Monroe Place, at her summer home in Storrs, Conn., on Saturday night, ended the suit for divorce from her husband which she had been pressing in the courts. The case came up about three weeks ago before Justice Lambert in the Supreme Court and was postponed until the September term of court. Mrs. Valentine, who was a member of Plymouth Church, as are her daughters, had a host of friends, who sympathized with her in her domestic troubles. Her husband, Benjamin E. Valentine, a lawyer by profession, but who has not practised actively for some time, had spent a great deal of his time in the management of Mrs. Valentine's estate, which had been left to her by her father, the late Augustus Storrs, formerly a prom ment resident of Brooklyn. Husband and wife did POLICE ORDER IGNORED-WHOLESALE AR. not agree about the management of the property nor in other matters. Some months ago Mrs. Val entine, through Thomas G. Shearman, as counsel, endeavored through the courts to get an accounting of the estate from Mr. Valentine. It is said that the money involved is more than $50,000. It is believed that it will be a most difficult task to straighten out the affair. Later Mrs. Valentine decided to sue for an absolute divorce from her husband. Her friends say solute divorce from her hashald. Solute divorce from her hashald to her daughters, of whom there are four, and she thought that if a divorce was granted it would the better secure the property for the children. The case came up in the Supreme Court, he fore Justice Lambert, about three weeks ago. Mr. Valentine appeared for himself. At that time he said that he was not ready to go on with the suit, and asked for an adjournment. He intimated that if the trial should proceed he might have to read some affidavits which would bring outsiders into unpleasant publicity. The hame of the co-respondent in the case was not given. The lawyers for the plaintiff objected to an adjournment, as they said Mr. Valentine wanted more time in order that he might learn what evidence his wife had against him. Mr. Valentine denied this. After he made a sworn statement to the effect that he would not attempt to approach the witnesses for the plaintiff, Justice Lambert consented to allow the case to go over until the September term of court. that she would not have done this after so many term of court.

By the death of the plaintiff the case will now be thrown out of court. It is not known just what shape the estate is in, but it is feared that it will be some time before things are straightened out so that the property can be turned over to the children. There are four daughters, all of whom lived with the mother in Monroe Place. Only one is married, she being the wife of George Lamb, a young lawyer.

The body of Mrs. Valentine was brought to Brooklyn from Connecticut on Saturday night, and the funeral will take place this afternoon. The time was set at first for 2.30 o'clock, and was so published, but later it was found necessary to postpone it until 4.20 o'clock. Friends say that the family do not know where Mr. Valentine is at present. For some years he has spent much of his time at his country home on Long Island.

Mrs. Valentine, who was fifty years old, was born in Brooklyn. Her father, Augustus Storrs, conducted a large wholesale business in New-York with his brother, Charles Storrs, both men living in Monroe Place in Brooklyn. The firm continued from 1854 until 1879. Soon after the later date Mr. Storrs went to live at his country home, near Mansfield. Conn. With his brother, Mr. Storrs a mumber of years ago gave land, buildings and an endowment to establish the Storrs Agricultural School in Mansfield. The school has since come to be known as the Connecticut Agricultural College, and its Storrs Experiment Station is known all to Storrs in honor of the founders of the institution.

TO SPREAD THEIR FAITH.

BROOKLYN CATHOLICS FORM A NEW SC CIETY WITH LARGE AIMS.

The Roman Catholics of Brooklyn have estab lished a Truth Society. The Rev. Dr. William F. McGinnis, of the Church of St. Francis Xavier, has been elected president. The object of the society is to disseminate Roman Catholic ideas, ideals and doctrines, and to refute attacks on the Roman Catholic Church. Every attack on the faith of the Roman Catholic Church will be answered through the press. Bishop Charles E. Mc-Donnell has given his sanction to the movement, and he regards it as being wise, salutary and beneficent.

It is believed by the originators of the movement that it will be made international. In connection with the society there will be a translation department. This is of particular interest, as every article in the Continental or American press attacking the Church will be answered by priests well versed in philosophy and theology.

versed in philosophy and theology.

The new society will pay great attention to library work, and will try to distribute Catholic literature throughout the country. There will not be the slightest element of bitterness in the controversy, as the society has decided that in the matter of controversy statements of fact and historical knowledge presented faithfully and fully will have a better effect than the introduction of religious bitterness, controversy or disputation.

It is believed by the members of the society that the enforcement of its objects will lessen the feeling of animosity between the different creeds, and that the result will be to reconcile, harmonize and elevate all of the Christian denominations throughout the world.

ILL AND A PRISONER,

A STEAMER STEWARD SUFFERING WITH APPEN-

DICITIS AND CHARGED WITH PETTY LARCENY. John Palmer, chief steward of the steamship Etonia, of the Norton Line, is lying ill from ap-pendicitis in the Brooklyn Hospital. He is under arrest on complaint of Edward F. Gordon, who was a passenger on the Etonia from Buenos Ayres to New-York. Mr. Gordon, in the first place, accused Mr. Paimer of grand larceny in stealing a fox terrier. Mr. Gordon has since changed his accusation to petty larceny. He said that Mr. Palmer stole the dog as the ship neared this port. Palmer stole the dog as the ship neared this port.

Palmer, who denied the accusation, said that Mr.

Gordon had given him and the passengers considerable trouble on the voyage.

When the ship arrived in the Erie Basin an unknown man led the missing dog up to Gordon and said. "Here it is."

Palmer is in a serious condition in the hospital.

The case against him is likely to be dropped.

Miss de Antonsanti, "there were only three Amer-ican families there. We were Yankees, despite our name, and when we heard that our old home had been burned down by the Spanish soldiers we been burned down by the Spanish soldiers we simply regarded it as a natural result of the war."

Miss de Antonsanti had taken from Brooklyn to Porto kico a silk American flag. In going from Ponce Miss de Antonsanti, in order to guard the Stars and Stripes, sewed the banner into the lining of her petticoat. She remained outside of Pomce until she heard of the execution by the Spanish troops and its possession by the American soldiers. Miss de Antonsanti then made a flagstaff out of a brush tree, capped it with the Stars and Stripes, and waved it in welcome to the entrance of the American soldiers into Ponce. Some of the soldiers borrowed the flag, and it was the first American banner to wave over the Ulty Hall of Ponce. The boys sang "America," "The Stars and Stripes" and cheered lustily.

"The Alcalde surprised us," she says, "by the fervor of his speech of welcome to the Americans, Porto Rico likes us, and is glad to be under our glorious old flag."

Huilek succeeded in getting hold of the bag, and found refuge within the bathhouse gates.

The claimants to the bag continued their dispute, and when the beach squad arrived Hughes, Baxter and Davitt were placed under arrest. The charge of disorderly conduct was made against them in Magistrate Borden's court.

"Let's see that bag," said the Magistrate. The bag was opened, and was found to contain another bag, which was filled with brass fillings.

Magistrate Borden fined Hughes and Baxter 110 each, but suspended sentence on Davitt.

"Your Honor, can't you make this sentence a little lighter?" asked Hughes.

"You are not in a Baxter-st, clothing shop now," answered the Magistrate.

"All right, Judge. I've got more money than I know what to do with, so here is $30," answered Hughes, who then thanked the Court for his lentency and complimented the policemen on the way in which they managed the crowd.

The episode was the result of a bet. A New-York criminal lavyer is said to have wagered fill with Hughes that the latter would not dare to drop something along the beach, create a disturbance and be arrested. If this be true, Hughes is $50 in pocket.

by Magistrate Nostrand in the Coney Island Police Court.

Captain Kenny, of the Coney Island police station, accompanied by Detectives Shea and Busby and a dozen patrolmen in plain clothes, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning made a raid on the hotel kept by Genaro Mannias, an Italian, at West Fifteenthst, and Mermaid-ave. Twenty-eight prisoners were taken in the police dragnet, and the patrol wagon and six Coney Island coaches took them to the station house in West Eighth-st. Among the prisoners were Genaro and Lucy Mannias, forty and thirty-nine years old, respectively, who were charged with keeping a disorderly persons.

Soon after this raid Captain Kenny and the same officers started out to gather in all vagrants, professional beggars and loiterers found on the island. Thirty-nine more prisoners were soon in cells at the station. Of this number twenty-nine were negroes and four white women. When arraigned before Magistrate Nostrand in the Coney Island Police Court, later in the day, a few were discharged and warned to leave the island, but the majority were sentenced to from ten days to six months.

In the case of the disorderly house the inmates were discharged and Mannias and his wife held for For some time the city of Englewood, the only city in Bergen County, has felt the need of a city hall, but the project at first met with strong oppo-sition on the part of the citizens generally. ever, those fostering the movement have been unrelenting in their efforts, and now it seems as if their exertions have not been in vain.

At a recent meeting of the City Council the matter was brought up and an ordinance authorizing the bonding of the city to the extent of $45.00 for the erection of a suitable city hall was passed without a dissenting vote. The city offices are at present in various buildings in the town, and it is said that the rent paid is considerably greater than the interest on the loan would be, while the accommodations are poor.

The necessity of improving the city's sanitary system was also brought before the Council, and an ordinance authorizing the issuing of a $10.00 bond for making the improvement was also passed. The Board of Education recommended the erection of several new school houses, and the Council passed an ordinance authorizing the bonding of the city to the extent of $6,00 for this purpose.

Besides these amounts $8,00 was voted for properly equipping the Fire Department, and the Road Committee also recommended that an appropriation be made for the grading and macadamizing of new streets. The Council voted $25,000 for this purpose also.

The total amount of the bonds to be issued is $148,000. Under the law a vote of the people will have to be taken, and the election has been set for September 5.

A FACTORY INSPECTOR CLEVERLY SECURES EVE DENCE AND RELEASES SIXTY-TWO CHIL-DREN FROM ILLEGAL LABOR

Paterson, Aug. 20 (Special).-Deputy Factory Inpector John Hunter has adopted novel me to secure evidence of violation of the Child Labor law. The result was the dismissal of sixty-two children under the legal age who were found at work in the Albion Mill, in Madison-st. work in the Albion Mill, in Madison-st. Inspector Hunter received a communication immediately after a recent visit to certain factories, stating that foremen had boasted of the fact that the inspector had been fooled. Children were sent home through a rear entrance while the inspector awaited a guide in the mill office. Others had been hidden in an elevator, which was dropped to a lower floor upon the entrance of the inspector.

Mr. Hunter, in shirt sleeves and with a wheelbarrow, loitered about the mill entrances at noon, and talked with little boys and a ris who were employed there. He wore an old suit and a slouch hat, and was not recognized Armed with evidence, he entered the mill and found it a kindergarten in several departments, which were crippled when the children were sent home. The mill is owned and operated by Bamford Bros. The firm was warned that any further infraction of the statute would entail prosecution. The musician's harp becoming in need of repairs, Bruno applied himself to the task with such good results that he was encouraged to branch out into manufacturing harps and building up a business in repairing the instruments. His shop was at No. 57 Crosby-st., Manhattan. He soon gained a reputation among musicians as a skilled harp repairer. His one great ambition was to construct a harp which should be exhibited at the Philadelphia Exposition in 1876. But so careful was Bruno in every detail and he took such pains in perfecting the instrument that without his knowledge the time at which the instrument should have been entered passed by, and the musician never forgot his great disappointment.

Later the harp maker moved to No. 37 Broomest, Manhattan, but a year ago he moved his shop to Brooklyn. His death was due to a sudden stroke its freight yard to the new piers it is erecting south of Bay-st. This property has long been in dispute. It was filled in by the railroad company, being part of the Harsimus Cove grant received from the Legislature about thirty years ago. The city referred the matter to its law officers some time ago, claiming an easement through Bay-st, to the river. No legal action has yet been begun.

When Captain Cody with the reserves of his precinct reached the ground in dispute the railroad officials showed a permit granted by Commissioner Nolan of the Street and Water Board to lay temporary tracks, the company agreeing that the city should be considered as not having waived any legal rights in the premises. Captain Cody, in order to be on the safe side, sent for Commissioner Nolan, who said he had given the permit upon the conditions stated. The police were then withdrawn and the work was completed.

the trustees who brought the charges of crusity against Mrs. Eyler. Dr. Maddock's letter to the Governor is merely a formal document, and sives no cause for his resignation. To a reporter Dr.
Maddock said he understood that the Governor thought it advisable to appoint an entire new Board as the best means of settling questions affecting the school. Dr. Maddock said he thought himself that it was best for all the trustees to resign and for a new Board to take charge.

Managing Trustee Cook, of this city, and Aaron
Carter, of Essex, are the only trustees of the old Board now remaining. It has been learned that Mr. Carter is now opposed to Mrs. Eyler, and is anxious for her removal, in the light of the recent investigation, and that his resignation may be expected in a few days.

Managing Trustee Cook says he has no reason yet to change his mind about not resigning, and that he will not get out unless the Governor personally requests him to do so. Mr. Cook is now running the school, as Mr. Carter, the remaining trustee, is in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Eyler is still suffering from nervous prostration, but her physician says he does not expect any serious results.
